Christina has been working in British politics for many years. Her career has taken in many different aspects of political life. It began in the Conservative Research Department, from where she progressed to be a Special Adviser (for the Rt Hon Norman Fowler MP, now the Rt Hon Lord Fowler, PC, the Lord Speaker).

Later as Director of Development and Candidates she is credited with introducing two innovative projects: cutting edge techniques in assessment for the candidates' list; and the development of a unit to sustain an outreach programme.

In 2003, on leaving CCHQ Christina became adviser to the then Shadow Attorney General, the Rt Hon Dominic Grieve QC MP, on community cohesion. She stayed with Dominic becoming his Shadow Special Adviser when he was Shadow Secretary of State for Justice and his Senior Parliamentary Adviser when he was Attorney General.
